

What matters to you in the world?

Do the exact same exercise as you did in Essay 2. Only this time, please consider issues that cross the borders of countries.

1. This essay should focus on the following topic: "As I look at the world, I notice these changes taking place..... They are good (or bad) because In these circumstances what is needed is" And describe how you would if you could influence the direction or speed of change to the betterment of the situation.

2. Next, we will brainstorm in class on mindomo. Create your own mindomo.jpg. and post to your website on your RESEARCH page. After you brainstorm in class on mindomo, but before you actually write the essay, speak to another member of the class about your ideas. Bounce your ideas off your colleague for his or her suggestions. At home, go to the place you think best. Protect 15 minutes to think before your write. Think about the world. What is happening that matters to you? Do you see anything changing? Is that change for the better or worse? What difference does that change make in your life? In the lives of others? Then write your essay.

3. Name your paper in Google Docs Last Name Essay 3 (ex: Moore Essay 3)

4. There is not as great a danger of hurting someone through your writing in this exercise as in the prior. Still, please write with care and sensitivity. Blur identifying characteristics if necessary.

5. At the beginning of the next class period you will share your essay on google docs with 3 other students. In turn, read at least 3 students' essays. Write brief comments on at least three or more colleagues' thoughts.
